Partner Fertility Clinics

For Frozen Embryo Transfers (FETs)

In 2017, Snowflakes implemented a program identifying a list of fertility clinics who would be our preferred partners. The primary goal of establishing clinic partnerships is to help our adopting families reach their desire to achieve pregnancy and childbirth more quickly. Since these clinics are located throughout the United States, rather than in one central location, traveling will be convenient for families.

Each of these clinics has provided Snowflakes with their protocol for receiving embryos created in another clinic. They were selected based upon our previous experiences working with them to secure necessary information, documents and ease of shipping.

Families also have the option of using the clinic where the embryos they are adopting were created and are now stored for their frozen embryo transfer—if that clinic will accept them as a new patient.

Here is an alphabetical list of the states where we have preferred partner fertility clinics. Please speak with your inquiry specialist to learn about individual clinic names.
